

Dental Treatment Consent During COVID 19

Thank you for your continued trust in our practice. As with any transmission of any communicable disease like a cold or the flu, you may be exposed to COVID-19, also known as 'Coronavirus' at any time, or in any place. Be assured that we will continue to follow all recommended government scientific guidance and use thorough personal protective equipment (PPE) and disinfectant protocols to limit transmission of all diseases.

Despite our careful attention to strengthen disinfection and the use of personal barriers, there's is still a chance you could be exposed to an illness at the surgery, just as you might be whilst shopping. Nationwide social distancing has reduced the transmission of the coronavirus. Although we have taken measures to enable social distancing in our practice, due to the nature of the procedure, it is not possible to maintain social distancing between the patient, dental health care team members and sometimes other patients, at all times.

Although exposure is unlikely do you accept the risk of consent to treatment?
